Trustee

Surriya Subramaniam is a Senior Manager at Surrey County Council, and is responsible for delivering the Surrey project for the Olympic and Paralympic Games. After starting along a legal career, including 2 years spent in a law firm in South Korea, Surriya put his legal knowledge to use within public service by working within Trading Standards departments at a variety of local authorities including Brighton, Harrow and Luton.

A change of career saw Surriya working within the cultural sector, managing closer and more efficient working between the Libraries, Heritage, Adult Learning and Arts sectors. He has led projects in the South East to increase volunteering, and has been developing national models for measuring and evaluating outcomes in culture.

Since 2008, Surriya has helped to bring business, community and health benefits to Surrey through the Olympic and Paralympic Games. "Culture has never had a more exciting time to take centre stage. The Games will create a real buzz, and we have an opportunity to share our passion with new audiences, that could lead to a new era in watching and participating in dance."
